

The driver pushed his way through the crowd, with some of the demonstrators even riding on the hood for a distance. In his defense, he did initially pick a spot that was mostly covered by a banner to try and break through. The genius protestors then all gathered in front of him and went for a little ride on the hood. At one point one of the pedestrians even tried punching the driver. Apparently, the driver had a job and responsibilities to attend to, unlike his pedestrian counterparts. (Source: Gateway Pundit)

1 of 1 10/18/22, 13:47